Why have you decided to study Geography at University?

Having a more in depth view of the subject, which I gained at college, really made me feel like I should study it at university as I found it enjoyable and I could also choose to specialise in a specific area of the course through this as well. I just find geography an extremely interesting subject that I didn't want to stop learning about.

How do you think the department at College prepared you for this? Richard Head was a great help with writing my personal statement for university as well helping with the course in general. The methods of teaching used are also a good step to what it is like at university.

Any other quotes about studying Geography at College and what you enjoyed about it?

Teachers were always ready to give extra help or guidance when it was needed. I particularly enjoyed the tectonics and energy area of the course as that is what I find most interesting. The tectonics part of the course also helped me decide that I want to try and work in the field of volcanology after my degree.
